Digitec Interactive Announces new LMS Partner, the Emergency Nurses Association and netFORUM Integration

Orlando, FL, February 17, 2011: Today, Digitec Interactive – the leading provider of easy-to-use learning portals and engaging eLearning programs and courseware, announced its partnership with the Emergency Nurses Association. A recognized leader in the emergency nursing profession, ENA, has selected Digitec’s Knowledge Direct® MED learning management system to deliver online continuing medical education (CME) and practice exams to its more than 36,000 members worldwide. The new online portal, ENA University will act as a single, unified repository for self-paced courses, live and recorded webinars, CEN practice exams and interactive simulations.

“The healthcare association market is among Knowledge Direct’s fastest growing business segments,” said Dick Hofmann, VP of Sales at Digitec Interactive. “ENA’s selection of Knowledge Direct MED as its LMS partner strongly validates how effectively our platform and related eLearning services supports the needs of associations. We are excited about the partnership and look forward to the portal’s launch.”

Implementation of the Knowledge Direct MED platform is under way and will tightly integrate with ENA’s association management system (AMS), netFORUM, as well as with ThePort, a social media platform used to facilitate social learning amongst its members. Integration with the netFORUM Enterprise system will provide ENA members with single sign-on capabilities, a secure eCommerce shopping cart for purchasing and self-registering for courses, live event registration as well as a seamless transition from the ENA University portal website to their Training Home Page.
